

Juanita Olaya
Revenue Transparency Programme
Manager Transparency International

Juanita Olaya joined TI October 2002 to develop the Global Programme to Curb Corruption in Public Procurement. She has also been Research and Policy Director and is currently Manager of the Revenue Transparency Programme. Juanita Olaya came to TI from Bonn where she started with her doctoral studies at Bonn University. Before coming to Germany, she worked for the Government of Colombia holding different executive and advisory positions within the National Planning Department, the Ministries of Transportation, of Economic Development and of Finance. She has also undertaken various research and academic activities with the University of the Andes in Colombia and with Harvard University in Cambridge, Massachusetts. During her more than 12 years of experience, she has alternated her work with private consulting in the areas of government reform, capital markets and anti-corruption. Juanita Olaya is a lawyer with a Masters degree in Economics (University of the Andes) and a Masters degree in Public Administration from the Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University. She has published a wide variety of articles in books, academic journals and news papers.