BACKGROUND

Climate finance is a growing envelope of public money – aimed at halting adverse climate change and building resilience to its effects. By 2020 international climate finance is expected to be worth US$100 billion annually. Beyond this, large sums will be spent domestically on forging the transition to a greener economy.

Transparency International is working to ensure that the necessary safeguards are in place to make sure that climate money gets to where it is needed.

THE TALKS

The Berlin Climate Finance Integrity Talks will tackle some of the key obstacles to the effective, efficient and transparent use of climate funds, by pushing policy and public discussions on fraud and corruption risks in climate finance.

Over the course of 2013, TI will bring together key climate finance experts from diverse sectors – from policy makers and practitioners to business people investing in climate finance – to tackle the key governance challenges that could prevent climate funds from achieving the transformational reforms our planet needs.

The talks aim to harness the knowledge, expertise and on the ground experience of climate policy makers and practitioners in Berlin.

TO GET INVOLVED

If you are interested in contributing to the series, following its outcomes or just hearing more, get in touch with TI’s Climate Finance Integrity team.

TRANSPARENCY INTERNATIONAL
Alt-Moabit 96, 10559 Berlin, Germany
T. + 49 30 3438 20692
F. + 49 30 3470 3912
E. lgood@transparency.org

ABOUT TRANSPARENCY INTERNATIONAL

TI is the global civil society organisation leading the fight against corruption. Through more than 100 chapters worldwide and an international secretariat in Berlin, we raise awareness of the damaging effects of corruption and work with partners in government, business and civil society to develop and implement effective measures to tackle it.
WHAT WILL THE SERIES ACHIEVE?

1) Open, frank and targeted conversations between key players on how to promote best practices and overcome the challenges that corruption and fraud pose to effective climate financing.

2) A series of concrete and realistic policy recommendations, collaboratively defined by experts and practitioners, on the safeguards, policies and practices required to ensure anti-corruption from the local to the global level.

3) Public discussions to raise awareness about the key findings and achievements of the talks series, and to support wider engagement for greater transparency, accountability and integrity in climate finance.

PLEASE NOTE:

This agenda is provisional. The timing and exact content of each session will be defined in collaboration with climate finance experts from organisations including: WWF Deutschland, Germanwatch, The Gold Standard Foundation, Freie Universität Berlin, adelphi, Oxfam De, Technische Universität Darmstadt, Die Deutsche Gesellschaft für Internationale Zusammenarbeit (GIZ), Deutsches Institut für Entwicklungspolitik (DIE).